LONDON, July 10.—British naval forces emerged from yesterday's battle with Italian warships in the Mediterranean without a single casualty after scoring a direct hit on one Italian battleship and putting a Fascist sea armada to flight.

Announcement that the British ships came through unscathed was made by the British commander-in-chief in the Mediterranean. An official communique added:

"In the absence of information to the contrary, it must be assumed the Italian naval forces, at least one heavy unit of which suffered damage, gained the shelter of their shore defenses."

East Of Malta

The major naval engagement occurred east of Malta, according to a British admiralty announcement.

The announcement also stated that British naval forces based at Gibraltar carried out a sweeping drive toward the central Mediterranean, destroying four enemy aircraft and damaging several others.

While serious warfare broke out in the Mediterranean between the

Six Children Are Victims Of Fumes

New York Family Gassed As Result Of Work Of Mother

"ONLY WAY OUT" READS MESSAGE

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, July 10.—Six children perished as they slept today because their apparently deranged mother sought "the only way out" for her offspring and herself.

Near death was the mother, Mrs. Louise Nicosia, 43, former inmate of a state mental institution. The mother and children were found in their gas-filled Bronx apartment. From a range in the kitchen poured a steady flow of fumes. Every jet on the range had been turned wide open.

A police emergency squad concentrated their efforts on resuscitation of the mother after all attempts to revive the children had failed. Little hope was held, however, that she would be brought back to consciousness.

The children who died were Carmelia, 12; Angelia, 11; Joseph, 8; Anna, 7; Dominick, 5, and four-year-old Frances Nicosia.

The tragedy was discovered about an hour after Joseph Nicosia, father and husband, had left for work.

A note written by Mrs. Nicosia, phrased in rambling terms told of "being refused at the hospital" and concluded:

"This is the only way out."

Wheeler Out If Roosevelt Runs

Believes Democrats Will Take Strong Stand Against War

By GEORGE DURNO
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, July 10.—Booming President Roosevelt's chances for a third term, Senator Burton K. Wheeler (D) Montana, today removed himself as a possible Presidential candidate on a third party ticket, and as a Presidential contender at the Chicago Democratic convention if President Roosevelt runs again.

Five days in advance of the Chicago convention the Montana liberal issued a statement explaining his political stand. Wheeler, who had threatened to bolt the Democrats if they become a "war party", said that he was now convinced that the Chicago convention will take a strong stand against intervention in Europe's war in the foreign policy plank of the platform.

Because of that, there is no need for a third party, Wheeler asserted. He also stated flatly that he would not seek the Democratic nomination at Chicago if Mr. Roosevelt seeks nomination to a third term.

Man In Scuffle With Policeman Is Fatally Shot

(International News Service)

BROWNSVILLE, Pa., July 10.—Death came early today to Charles Tedrow, Sr., 50, shot in a scuffle with Patrolman Ted Jones Monday night.

Tedrow succumbed in Brownsville hospital from an abdominal wound inflicted by Jones, 52, who fired two shots while lying on his back. District Attorney H. Vance Cotton, of Fayette county, held that the shooting was done in self defense and that no charges would be brought against Jones.

Tedrow and his son, Charles, Jr., allegedly attacked Jones when the patrolman told them to right a parking sign the younger Tedrow had overturned. Charges of aggravated assault and battery were lodged against the son. Cotton said Jones told him the elder Tedrow kicked him in the face after the father and son had knocked him down.

Democrats Are Jockeying For Vice President

Pre-Convention Activity Based On Assumption President Will Run

By GEORGE DURNO
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, July 10—Continued pre-convention mystery over President Roosevelt's utilmate third term decision served only to stir up a lot of jockeying in Democratic ranks today all based on the assumption that the chief executive will consent to run for re-election.

Vice presidential hopefuls were busy laying their lines to get on the ticket with Mr. Roosevelt at Chicago next week, while friends were quietly boosting various prominent party men for the job of managing a precedent-shattering race for a third term.

If the president finally consents to the nomination, he will select, by time-honored custom, both his running mate and his campaign manager. Therefore the current agitation around the national capital was aimed squarely at White House ears.

British Fliers Drive Off Largest Nazi Raid Yet Attempted

By MERRILL MUELLER

LONDON, July 10.—Germany hurled a massive air armada of 80 planes against England today in the biggest aerial offensive of the war.

The skies over southeast England were literally darkened with diving, zooming aircraft.

Sixteen Shot Down

At least 16 German planes were brought down in the series of intensive attacks. Of these, at least 10 were brought down in the attack on the southeast coast.

More than a dozen bombers, diving with a terrifying roar in the face of a heavy anti-aircraft barrage, began the attack by raining a shower of high-explosive bombs.

The second phase of the attack developed 10 minutes later when a formation of about 30 German aircraft were seen heading west at 10,000 feet.

As they reached the coast, they unloaded several salvos of bombs which fell wide and missed their mark. Anti-aircraft guns again went into action, and fighters swept up into the attack.

As British fighters drove off the bombers, German fighters which

Willkie In Colorado For Vacation Period

Trip West Is Made In Plane

G. O. P. Candidate Well Pleased With Outlook For Campaign

WILL WRITE SPEECH FOR HIS ACCEPTANCE

By WALTER KIERNAN
International News Service Staff Correspondent

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo., July 10.—Wendell Willkie opened one eye early today, started to open the other, then resolutely closed both and went back to sleep.

This was unusual conduct for the Republican presidential nominee who is ordinarily an up-and-at-'em boy but as of today he was definitely "on vacation."

Going To Rest

"I'm going to loaf, read, walk, drive and sleep," Willkie announced when he checked in at the Broadmoor Hotel late last night. "Most of all I'm going to sleep."

Pert Mrs. Willkie nodded enthusiastic agreement. Both were tired after their ten and a half hour plane ride from Washington—an air distance of 1650 miles—and the candidate has had little rest since he went to Philadelphia almost three weeks ago for the national convention which resulted in his nomination.

Actually, by eastern time, it was early morning when the trip ended.

Willkie told the newspapermen who accompanied him on the trip: "I feel like a member of the Northwest Mounted Police—I got my man."

Enthused Over Chairman

He referred with evident satisfaction, to the appointment of Representative Joseph W. Martin, Jr., of Massachusetts, as campaign manager and Republican national chairman.

With other campaign posts filled by John D. M. Hamilton, retiring chairman, Russel W. Davenport, and Oren Root, Jr., he radiated optimism as to the presidential campaign.

The first week of his vacation, the candidate will give over entirely to rest and relaxation. The second he plans to invite a few men to come out for discussion of campaign problems.

"I plan to invite men like William Allen White and George Wharton Pepper," Willkie said. "In my judgment they are two highly intelligent men with an intelligent approach to foreign affairs."

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Without going too deeply into matters of policy, Willkie has said that he is against "bluffing ,when the other fellow knows you are bluffing" in foreign affairs. White heads the committee which was calling for all aid to the Allies before France surrendered).

To Write Speech

The candidate will also invite Gov. Harold Stassen of Minnesota, his closest political adviser, to come to Colorado.

During the third week, he will work on his acceptance speech but without help. "I roll my own," he says.

Should they desire, Mr. and Mrs. Willkie can start out for Colorado trout anytime they desire. Meeting them at the plane was Gov. Ralph Carr who presented both with fishing licenses and western Sombreros. Willkie says he is a poor fisherman and a worse golfer.

Despite the length of the plane trip, it was uneventful except for an hour of bumpy weather over Colorado during a thunderstorm.

During the long trip, both the nominee and Mrs. Willkie swapped small talk with reporters accompanying them, read or napped. Today, both plan to sleep late and they set no other schedule—just sleep.

Superintendent Brenneman hopes that the Work Projects Administration approves a recently submitted project which would give the farm new fencing and a new covered field.

BRITISH-ITALIAN NAVAL BATTLE IN MEDITERRANEAN

British and Italians. German planes continued their relentless series of raids against the British Isles.

First news of the Anglo-Italian sea fight reached London in the form of a terse message that contact had been made with Italian forces east of Malta.

The next flash said a British battleship obtained a direct hit on an Italian battleship. The British commander-in-chief in the Mediterranean added that the enemy was being pursued.

Italian Report

Rome, July 10.—Probable sinking of a British battleship and loss of an Italian destroyer and submarine were reported today in an official Italian communique describing the naval engagement in the Mediterranean.

The Italians admitted that 29 sailors were killed and 69 wounded.

The communique stated:

"On July 8 reconnaissance planes signalled that British naval forces, divided in three groups and including some aircraft carriers, were sighted between the island of Crete and the North African coast, proceeding westward.

"Further confirmation was given shortly afterward by one of our submarines which torpedoed and sank one of the enemy destroyers.

"Our aviation immediately left its base and with tireless activity subjected the enemy naval formation all day long to repeated and extremely effective bombing attacks. Some of the vessels were hit and seriously damaged, and fires were visible aboard.

Believe Warship Sunk

"It is believed one warship—probably a battleship—was sunk.

"All our planes returned except one, which was forced to land in Grecian territory. The crew is safe.

"Although reduced, the English naval formation held to its route leading to the supposition that its objective was to raid the central Mediterranean and to attack by sea and air some important coastal positions of ours.

"Consequently, strong groups of our fleet took to sea to head off the attempt.

"Late in the afternoon of July 9, although bad conditions of visibility had hindered air reconnaissance, our fleet succeeded in coming in contract with the enemy in the Ionian Sea while important air forces joined the action from the sky.

One Warship Hit

"After brief intensive firing, the enemy gave up its objective and moved off toward the southeast.

"Only one of our warships was hit. The damage is repairable in a few days. Twenty-nine members of the crew were killed in the fight, and 69 wounded.

"Our aviation, notwithstanding extremely strong anti-aircraft fire, followed the enemy until darkness, striking some of his ships with bombs of heavy calibre.

"Our destroyer Zefiro was sunk, but the crew is safe. One of our submarines failed to return to its base.

"Another English naval formation leaving Gibraltar was sighted heading northeast. Sighted by our aviation July 9 south of the Balearics, la was subjected to a violent, day-long bombing with evidence of effective results.

"Three of our planes failed to return to their bases."

WHAT'S BEHIND MEXICAN VIOLENCE?

THE only returns so far from the Mexican Presidential election consist of the list of dead and injured.

What's back of all this? As never before the people of Mexico and every other Latin-American country need to draw together in the face of a menace which, if it comes upon them, will make their present difficulties and problems seem like child's play.

Disorder and division in Latin America play directly into the hands of the totalitarian warmakers of Europe. No other result can come from them.

Communists, Nazis and other foreign subversive elements have been excessively busy in Mexico, particularly since the war began. A huge Nazi penetration has been taking place for many months. Even before Sunday's election there were threats of revolution. Its events certainly have increased such a dangerous possibility.

They likewise raise the serious question whether foreign elements are not heavily involved in promoting just such an outbreak south of the Rio Grande.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

The uncle of the Republican candidate for President tells the press that the candidate's name is not Wendell Lewis Willkie, but Lewis Wendell Willkie. It seems that a recruiting officer during the World War entered the name, through error, as "Private Wendell L. Willkie." Mr. Willkie decided to let it go at that, when he discovered how much red tape would have to be cut to change it.

There is distinguished precedent for nominating gentlemen not under their own baptismal names. Not to go too far back, there are cases of Hiram Ulysses Grant, Stephen G. Cleveland, Thomas W. Wilson and Herbert C. Hoover. Some dropped their first names, some their middle names, some, as in Grant's case, even changed their names.

Mr. Willkie keeps all his names, and if their order has been reversed, he does not impress many as the kind of man who's liable to be mistaken for someone else.

SHE CAME HOME TO READ THE NEWS

Returning to Philadelphia after five months in war-torn Europe, Mrs. John Jay Ide, the former Dora Browning Donner, had one extremely important chore first on her list says the Inquirer, of Philadelphia.

She intends to pursue a course of steady reading of newspapers of the past few months to learn just what has happened in Europe. In France she hadn't been able to find out.

Her experience is significant. In spite of the problems created by censorship in belligerent nations and in most of their non-belligerent or neutral neighbors, Americans have known, not everything, but a great deal of what has been going on. If they're not seeing the true picture, at least they're able to get a better perspective than Germans, Frenchmen, Belgians, Italians, even Englishmen.

Millions of Europeans know only vaguely what is happening around them. In the dictatorships the blackout of news is both a political device and a weapon. In the democracies it was forced to a greater or less degree as a means of defense.

In any case, it is part of the darkness spreading over the Old World and it is intensifying that darkness. An untrammeled press, telling the American people to the best of its ability what is happening and what it means, is essential to the preservation of our democracy.

WORK TO DO

Stalin's providential—to the Western Hemisphere—grab in the Balkans will enable the twenty-one republics to discover whether they are ready honestly to work together for their mutual protection and well being.

It is apparent they are already convinced a final German victory will drive them either into economic isolation or international trade on Germany's terms.

Unless the U. S. is willing to face German penetration of the western world it must assume leadership in a broad program of industrial expansion that will block Hitler. For when the fighting ends he will have his own labor and industries plus the labor and industries of captive countries to trade for much needed oil, metals, fibers, foodstuffs and other raw materials that South America can supply in immense quantities.

Divide and rule has been one of Hitler's principal weapons.

Until the western republics are united in a common compact, mutually helpful and beneficial, economic penetration would be a simple task.

Since Hitler always accompanies economic penetration by political penetration he would gradually outflank the United States in an economic, political, military and naval way just as has occurred in Europe if given an entering wedge.

There are definite indications of fifth column activities in many South and Latin American countries.

This pressure will be constantly increased. It may be expected to surge to a peak if and when all Europe is compelled to bow at his feet.

As long as the English navy stands as a barrier, as long as Stalin opposes the further conquests necessary to free his own people and his captives from the danger of famine the western world will escape onslaught except through his fifth column.

But these can be controlled and in the meantime the United States can determine definitely whether or not it can weld the twenty-one republics into a unified team.

Probably the United States will be compelled to exert heavy pressure kindly, if possible, hard boiled if necessary to attain this goal.

But if the U. S. is to defend the Western Hemisphere it must have definite assurance of hearty co-operation from each of the protected nations.

Hemisphere development will demand heavy investments, stable governments, an end to the confiscation of United States capital, willing and eager co-operation by each participant.

If during the next century, South and Latin America are developed to the extent achieved by the United States since 1840 the democratic form of government will be safe from any assault.—Harrisburg Telegraph.

The Parent Problem

By Garry C. Myers, Ph. D.

CITY AIDS BACKYARD PLAY

While my wife and I were attending the annual convention of the National Congress of Parents at Omaho we learned of the fine backyard playground program which has been sponsored the past eight years in Lincoln, Nebraska, by the Lincoln Council of Parent-Teacher Associations. Cooperating in this enterprise is the Lincoln Recreation Board We obtained the following facts of Mrs. Fred E. Easterday, Recreation Chairman, Lincoln Council of Parents and Teachers.

Great interest in making the home the center of family recreation and safety and adequate space and equipment for home play are among the objectives sought in this campaign. Its slogan is, "The Home, the Center of Family Fun."

Try For Awards

Awards are made for originality, the use of waste materials and utilization of limited spaces. Design and appearance of home-made equipment are encouraged while suitablity of the playground for use by the entire family, the variety of activities, and the time spent there are important factors in rating a playground for an award.

A feature of this campaign is the Handy Club to which all the boys and girls with playgrounds registered in this campaign are eligible. Membership is achieved when an acceptable piece of handcraft made from waste materials is compelted. The purpose of this club is to encourage the use of waste materials in making "something from nothing" and at the same time stimulate interest in constructive vacation activities that will continue over a period of time. Badges made from waste bits of wood are given those who achieve membership in this club.

The Lincoln Recreation Board, for the past two years, has sent out releases to the registrants in this campaign giving suggestions for games, handcraft, and equipment suitable for home recreation. A booklet on outdoor fireplaces was also made available last year.

Chance For All

Playground activties and highlights in Lincoln vary from year to year. One year tree-houses predominated. Another year play houses and work shops were the popular trend. Last year out-door fireplaces and croquet courts were characteristic of a large number of the backyard arrangements. Some of the backyards became neighborhood play areas. However, this campaign is not planned to compete with the city's summer supervised playgrounds, but rather to supplement them with such activities as may bear a very definite relationship to the home and family life.

But alas! There are thousands and thousands of children in homes without back yards. As members of our community, large or small, we should see to it that they have ac-

The World AND THE Mud Puddles

AN OLD PRINTER.

Fred Alles, who now lives in Southern California, is a very old printer and has a very good memory, although he is ninety years old.

He was a pressman's apprentice on the Pittsburgh Post when Abraham Lincoln was assassinated. Now, that is going back a long ways in American history and, naturally, he can remember a great deal of American history and can comment on it pretty wisely. He was recounting to some of his friends recently, not affairs of State, but incidents of his youth.

He said that when he was a kid, like many other youngsters not only of his day and generation but of the present generation, he and his boyhood companions played hooky from school. Frequently, they boarded railroad passenger trains and went out into the country. They had no money but they took the precaution to sit beside an adult passenger so that the conductor would not ask for their fare.

Upon one of these expeditions, Alles picked an elegant looking passenger who had a vacant seat beside him and found the elegant passenger a very pleasant chap. He got off with the passenger as he had gone far enough for that day's exploration, and his seat passenger said to him upon leaving him:

Well, my boy, when you grow up you'll be able to tell people that you occupied a seat with the former President of the United States, Martin Van Buren."

There are not many living today who can hark back to the days of Martin Van Buren.

WAITING

Down through the years she used to say:
"So oft I've had to wait!
Time after time his work or play
Has kept him over-late."

No murmur of complaint she made.
Whene'er we passed her by
And questioned why alone she stayed.
"I'm waiting!" she'd reply.

Never she met him with a frown,
Nor seemed to think it wrong
When late he lingered in the town
That she must wait so long.

"I've waited for him all the years,"
Smiling to us she'd say.
"But glad am I when he appears
And puts his tasks away."

And now, since she was first to go,
Somewhere near Heaven's gates
For him to come from work we know
Her gentle spirit waits.

LOVE

(News item: College professor says love is the most employed word in the English language.)

A sapient professor says
That love's the popular word.
It ends almost all telegrams
Save business ones, I've heard.

It pulsates over air and wires,
It's passed by Uncle Sam
In rural or in urban posts,
By vessel, train and tram.

Four letters in that simple word,
And yet encompassed there,
Entwined with every heart string,
Is all that makes life fair.

The good professor I commend
And findings, every one.
The recipe is simple, and
It's best from sun to sun.

TODAY'S STORYETTE

"So you want another day off?" said the office chief to his small office boy. "I am interested to know what the excuse is this time. You have been to the funeral of your grandfather four times this year."

"I know," said the boy, "but today grandpa is getting married again."

One reason why a local man walks in the straight and well-behaved path: His wife flirts just enough to keep him watching her.

Some of the Roosevelts have said they wished the people would let them lead their own normal lives. It will not be long until they will be able to do that. Quiet, please!

The ladies have rules too. It is ethical to take a friend's husband but not ethical to take her cook.

Two couples were back-country driving Sunday. They stopped at a popular eating place for dinner. Hotel served a three-way chicken dinner, in a one-way style. One of the men remarked, "Jack, reckon we should put on a good front, so it's up to us to choose the three-way dinner."

One of the wives chirped up with, "Sure; that's a swell way to increase the size of the fronts you already have."

OR A WHEEL CHAIR

A new Nrl at the Fernfrill beauty shoppe came to Flossie with a problem yesterday.

"Just dash out and buy him a hotwater bottle," said Flossie.

"I have, adjoining my living room, a small room which I wish to use as a library. I plan to have built-in bookshelves but since I must have an entire set of furniture in the room, could you suggest an arrangement whereby the furniture will not hide the books?" writes G. C.

My reply: Cover one wall of your library with book shelves designed like those shown in the accompanying sketch and you will have room for both your books and your furniture. In addition to being a space-saver in a small room, these high-up shelves are very attractive. Thus, you will, below your bottom shelves, have room for a large davenport or studio couch flanked by low cases of double drawers which may be built in as a base to your shelving if you prefer. The remainder of your furniture can be distributed along the other three sides of your library.

Readers' Questions Answered

Question: Please advise me (1) if it is proper for the groom to walk with the bride in a home wedding if the bride has no father to give her away. (2) Is is a breach of etiquette for a bride to have her uncle give her away even though her father is still living?—D. M.

Answer: (1) If she will have a processional and several attendants, she should walk alone and meet the groom at the alter if there is no one to give her away. If she will dress informally and have no processional, she may, with propriety, enter with the groom. (2) If her parents are estranged and her father will not appear at the wedding or if her father is an invalid, her uncle may without causing any embarrassment, give her away. But if her father is in perfect health and will be present, she should either walk with him or alone.

Question: When I inclose my personal card with a gift or with flowers sent to an intimate friend it always seems foolishly formal, as my card reads: "My Anthony Carr." Is there any way in which I might eliminate this formality?—A. B.

Answer: In such cases, it is usual and quite permissible to cross out the title and the last name, leaving only the first name. On the contrary, when the one to whom the card is sent is not an intimate friend, neither the title nor the last name should be crossed out.

There is nothing so much in all the world to be admired as a man that can bear his unhappiness with courage.

The weapons captured from France will be used against England; those captured from England will be used against us. To dispute it is to dispute Nazi history.

WHY WAS I BORN?

Well, at any rate I'm here—though no fault of mine, but since I am here I may as well be resigned. You see, mother 'n' dad "just MUST have a toy," it didn't matter to them whether a girl or a boy. I'm only the victim, and, for their crime, for "three score 'n' ten" I'll have to serve time. The country won't need me—they can't make that excuse—as thousands of babies die of neglect and abuse. If it's shortgae of people they patriotically fear, they'd save little babies already here. They'd take a wee kiddie and love as their own, and care for and nurture until he is grown. And the fact that from now on I'll have one bump on another, worries them not in the least, "he must have a sister and brother." Oh, well, let's forget it, parents will have their way, and we CAN count on the autos to put us out of the way.—Junior.

REVERSE ON CHASING

A man recalls that when he was a little fellah, a certain girl "plagued" him by saying that some day she intended to marry him when she grew up.

He disliked the girl so much that he kept out of her sight—ran from her. But later in life she found it necessary to run from him.

Hi Hum says life begins when a baby has outgrown its four-cornered pants.

A tourist is a person who feels abused if little towns make him slow down to safeguard their children as big towns do.

LIFE'S LITTLE AGONIES

"I always feel much better after a good cry," said the first young married woman.

"Gets things out of your system, I suppose," replied her friend.

"No—but it gets things out of my husband."

It's often a good thing for a person to be able to do several things. There are people who can do only one thing and in some cases they can't do that very well.

It was stated in a lunch room yesterday in this city that "If every boy who had stolen a watermelon had been killed in the attempt there wouldn't be enough men left to sing bass in the church choir."

You can get a very good idea of what poor leadership has done in some foreign countries. There has also been leadership in some countries you don't approve of.

What's What At A Glance

Third Party Threat Pleases G. O. P.
Would Take Strength From Democrats
Feeling Of Uneasiness Is Concealed

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Columnist

WASHINGTON, July 10—Third party threats don't worry Wendell Willkie and the rest of his Republican organization a particle. In fact, they outright hope that there'll be an independent ticket in the field for the presidency. It won't cost the G. O. P. a single vote, they figure. On the opposite hand, they calculate that it will split the Democrats considerably.

Willkie, to be sure expresses all sorts of confidence that he will win, anyway. Still, he can't have any objection to a division in his opposition's ranks. And some of his lieutenants remark that while they're already dead sure of victory, they're quite willing to be that much surer.

The Democrats just about to do their nominating don't admit any feeling of uneasiness. They wouldn't It would be bad politics. Nevertheless they certainly aren't pleased at the idea of a possible bolt from their alignment and the Republicans are only logical in assuming that that's what a rump nomination would amount to.

That anybody really believes a third candidate could be elected, of course, puts a pretty severe strain upon the average individual's credulity.

So the questions arise:

Is any aggregation likely actually to go to the trouble and expense of putting up a nominee who's certain to be knocked over? Even if, by making the abortive effort, he could crab the chances of some other candidate he didn't like, would that be worth the price of admission? In short, aren't these third party talkers simply bluffing?

Nobody Knows

Nobody knows—yet. Very soon we all will.

True, there have been third tickets before. So why not now?

Well, I'm inclined to think that the backers of those earlier third tickets had a ridiculous but honest-to-goodness notion that they stood a chance of winning.

Senator Burton K. Wheeler once ran, vice presidentially, on such a ticket, with the elder Senator Robert M. LaFollette. I was at the convention that nominated 'em. And I'll say, based on talks with dozens of 'em, that those Progressives genuinely thought they had a winning ticket.

It would seem as if that outcome ought to have been a convincing experience to Burt Wheeler. Yet you can't tell. "Once a sucker," they say, "always a sucker." And if the Democrats don't nominate Wheeler for president at their Chicago convention, and then if there's a third ticket, it's a cinch that he'll be at the head of it.

Burt doesn't say, indeed, that he's absolutely the only Democratic nominee, who'd be acceptable to him but he's made it clear that he's the only one that the convention's conceivably going to select, whom he can indorse—Roosevelt or anybody.

Probably I've done Burt an injustice in saying he'll classify as a political sucker if he accepts another third party nomination. If so nominated he doubtless will accept, as he did, the first time, out of pure sincerity. I think he'll be willing to sacrifice himself and be licked if he thinks the country's good demands it.

Some Few Hopes

The Democrats have some hopes, though.

When Senator Wheeler ran for vice president, with Senator LaFollette, Burt was a senator, but his term wasn't just expiring. He was in a position to run for vice president, but if trimmed for that job, still to stay in the senate.

This time his senatorial term IS expiring.

He can't run for president on a third party ticket and for reelection to the senate simultaneously. If he runs for president and is beaten, he's ditto out of the senate. In brief, he's retired from public life, at least temporarily. And following retirement public life is difficult to break back into.

Will Burt choose to run that risk? The administration Democrats devoutly hope not.

The Republicans hope he will.

Supposing Burt gets a third party nomination. Republicans are well suited with his affiliation with John L. Lewis because they think that will divide his labor support. They're not so well pleased by his identification with the "Doc" Townsend movement. They rate it as nutty but are afraid it's growing.

But Burt is the Democrat's chief worry—not the Republicans.

The Great Game Of Politics

By FRANK R. KENT

by The Baltimore Sun (Copyright, 1940)

The Great Roosevelt-Farley Secret

WASHINGTON, July 10. DESPITE almost overwhelming evidence that he will allow himself to be "drafted" at Chicago and run for a third term, the opinion is here reiterated that Mr. Roosevelt will not run. This belief conflicts with the conviction of most of the President's intimate friends, with nearly all the practical politicians and with Mr. Roosevelt's own attitude and actions. And it may be one hundred per cent wrong.

NEVERTHELESS it is held—held not-withstanding the fact that it is hard to see a way by which he can escape running. It is held, too, with full knowledge that a large number of Democratic leaders encouraged by his course to believe he not only intends to be the party's candidate but wants to be, would feel the president had "let the party down" by declining now. There is, in addition the almost irresistable pressure of his jobholders. There is, further, the argument that he has let things go so far now that no one else has a chance of being elected.

ALL of those things may be true, but when Mr. Roosevelt a week in advance of the convention puts his cards on the table and tells Mr. Farley, under a pledge of secrecy, frankly what he intends to do, and Mr. Farley, reported as "looking happy," asserts that the interview was "altogether satisfactory"—when that happens, it is enough to balance if not outweigh the evidence on the other side. At least so it seems to me. Consider for a moment the facts. Nearly a year ago, when the Corcorans, Ickes and Cohens had had their third term movement under way for some time, Mr. Roosevelt unquestionably told Mr. Farley at Hyde Park that he would not run.

THAT is a known fact. It is also known that Farley then told the President that personally he was against third terms. So far as Mr. Farley knew, the President never changed his mind. It is true that things he did for himself and things others did for him could easily be construed as indicating a change. But he never discussed the subject with Mr. Farley and the latter felt he had a right to proceed on the theory that Mr. Roosevelt meant what he said. He did so proceed and the relations between the two men became considerably strained, because others just as close to the President were proceeding very vigorously and openly in the other direction with what seemed his entire approval.

BY utilizing the emergency created by the European war, the self-interest of machine politicians, like Kelly, of Chicago, and Hague, of Jersey City, and by putting behind the "draft" movement full Administration weight they succeeded in knocking down every other candidate and crushing all party opposition—all without consultation with, or aid from, Mr. Farley. Now they have a convention completely in Mr. Roosevelt's hands. It will, if he permits, nominate him by acclamation. There will be in it many third term opponents, but self-interest plus a sense of futility will keep them from a demonstration. Through the efforts of his friends, encouraged by himself it has become a hand-made convention with which he can do as he pleases.

UNDER these conditions he sends for Mr. Farley and puts his cards on the table. Mr. Farley says it was a satisfactory, completely frank talk and that he knows fully the President's plans. Of course, Mr. Farley will not break confidence, but clearly there are only three things which the President could have said to him. First, he could have told Mr. Farley that he wants the nomination and intends to run or he could

Nazi Blitzkrieg Seen Years Ago

German Lieutenants Forecast Military Aeronautics In 1918

MASS BOMBINGS WERE PREDICTED

By KENNETH M. SOHEIBEL
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, July 10.—Present Nazi blitzkrieg tactics were uncannily forecast by a German lieutenant 22 years ago, the National Geographic Society has revealed.

The Society called attention to an account published in its magazine for January, 1918, quoting a Lieutenant Bothe of Berlin in an address to the Deutscher Fliegerbund, the German Aerial League.

Lieutenant Bothe spoke of air fighting at that time, the Society said, and then addressed his listeners at some length about the position of military aeronautics after the present war. (1914-18).

Bothe foretold that on the cessation of the present hostilities all the nations would at once build up an impenetrable series of modern defensive works, the Society said. These fortifications would be extended several miles behind their frontiers, and, said Bothe, "it will be beyond the power of human beings to break through, except by the aerial arm."

Foresaw Mass Bombing

The German officer, the Society quoted from the article, prophesied mass bombing by airplanes.

"In future wars it will be necessary to invade the enemy's territories by means of tens of thousands of aeroplanes, which, by dropping hundreds of tons of explosives will destroy all industrial works, transport routes, etcetera, and thus delay the advance of the troops and impede preparations for offense or defense," he said.

The amazing accuracy of his prediction has been borne out in the light of recent developments. He continued:

"The war will be won within the first few days of the declaration of hostilities by the power, or powers, which will be thus able to throw in the largest weight of aerial 'frightfulness,' and thereby paralyze the fighting efficiency of their opponents, before even a battle has been fought or a campaign opened."

Duty To Find Pilots

The lieutenant said it would be the task of the Aerial League which was then growing in importance and influence, to find pilots to man the tens of thousands of aeroplanes.

Bothe said by suitable training courses at aerodromes and in the workshops "the youth of the country will be prepared for later service in the flying corps."

He then urged everyone interested to "give the league all the support possible by joining a local branch and by making its objects more widely known."

Rare Botanical Specimens Found In Bear Meadows

Famous Pennsylvania Quagmire Produces Unusual Forest Growth

HARRISBURG, July 10.—Bear Meadows State Forest Monument, located in the Seven Mountains in Centre county, is probably the most popular of the forest monuments in Pennsylvania because of its unusual make-up and great botanical interest.

It is a quagmire of 350 acres and it is believed to have received its name because of the prevalence of bear.

Bear Meadows is easily accessible from State College and has long been used by botanist and forestry students. In this great forested meadow grow specimens of the pitcher plant, sundew and other rare plants common to the cold boggy swamps of the North. The tree growth is also unique with stands of balsam fir, tamarack and black spruce. The laurel and rhododendron are abundant and tree huckleberries grow to an unusual height.

A forest road extends from the Bear Meadows Monument across Bear Meadow Mountain to Stone Creek Valley, at the upper portion of which are located the Detweiler Run and Alan Seegar State Forest Monuments. The road opens an approach to Bear Meadows from the historic Greenwood Furnace and from McAlevey's Fort.

State Delegation To Support Roosevelt

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, July 10.—Final plans for the Pennsylvania delegation to the Democratic national convention at Chicago were whipped into shape Tuesday at a conference of party officials headed by state chairman Meredith Meyers.

John A. Phillips, of Harrisburg, president of the Pennsylvania industrial Union Council, state CIO affiliate, will attend the convention as a delegate-at-large, it was revealed by Walter L. Miller, resident secretary. Phillips, an alternate delegate-at-large, will substitute for George Rowand, of Harrisburg, who is recuperating from an illness and is unable to attend.

The only other change in the list of the 16 delegates-at-large, each of whom has a one-quarter vote, is that made necessary by the death of Thomas A. Logue, of Philadelphia former secretary of internal affairs. Logue's place was taken by Mrs. Emma Guffey Miller, sister to Senator Joseph F. Guffey. Mrs. Miller and Phillips were selected as substitutes because they received the highest number of votes for alternates-at large.

The delegation of 72, the second largest at the convention, will journey to the convention by train and plane. Meyers will leave Harrisburg with Miller Thursday night by train, while Dr. Luther A. Harr, Guffey's campaign manager, and committee secretary Paul C. Lewis will fly from Philadelphia Saturday morning. Guffey and state committeeman David L. Lawrence are expected to arrive in Chicago Saturday morning also.

The group's first caucus, at which it will vote to support Roosevelt for a third term, will be held Monday at 10 a. m. in the Congress hotel. The delegation will be housed mainly in the Stevens, Sherman and Palmer House hotels, with some staying at the Congress.

Expect Funds For State Turnpike Extension

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, July 10—Confidence that the $50,000,000 to $70,000,000 needed for the construction of the proposed turnpike extension from Harrisburg to Philadelphia would be forthcoming when necessary pervaded the headquarters of the Pennsylvania turnpike commission today.

Commission chairman Walter A. Jones said the outlook for the 100-mile turnpike link, whose purpose is to connect Pittsburgh and Philadelphia with an express highway, was "excellent" following a conference with Gov. Arthur H. James. Present also were Thomas J. Evans, James' appointee to the commission and John D. Faller, commission counsel.

The underwriting funds would come from either the reconstruction Finance Corporation, which helped to finance the toll highway now nearing completion between Pittsburgh and Harrisburg, or one of the government's defense agencies, Jones indicated.

Preliminary work on the turnpike extension may begin this fall following completion of the present 160-mile superhighway which Jones said would probably take "six or eight weeks."

The possibility that he defender agencies may initiate a nationwide system of trunk highways suitable for military purposes was also advanced by Jones.

"I have been informed" he said, "that the defense agencies at Washington may turn up the whole system of military self-liquidating superhighways which I outlined in an address at Chicago last January."

At the time Jones proposed the expenditure of $860,000,000 to be used for the following purposes: extension of the Pittsburgh-Harrisburg turnpike to Philadelphia, a highway from Richmond to Boston, via Philadelphia; extension to St. Louis and Chicago of the Pennsylvania turnpike, and a link from Chicago to the Pittsburgh- St. Louis superhighway to intersect near Indianapolis.

have said that he does not want it, but will accept for the party's and the country's sake if "drafted" or he could have said that he has not changed his mind and is determined not to run. He could, of course have said a number of other things—and did—but certainly he had to start with one or the other of these three basic propositions.

THE reasons either of the first two seems unlikely are clear enough. Take the first—that he wants the nomination and intends to run. It isn't reasonable to think he said that, because it not only negatives his former statement to Mr. Farley, but puts him in the indefensible position of having seized the nomination instead of having it thrust on him. As to the second, it does not seem probable that he talked of being "drafted" to Mr. Farley for the "good of the party and the country." Because no one knows better than Mr. Farley that the "draft" would be phony and Mr. Farley has not concealed his view that the third term fight would be bad for the party, the country and the President.

TO acquiesce in the effort now would be to execute a flop. To agree to run a third-term campaign would be complete stultification. No one who knows Mr. Farley believes he will do either of these things. If these assertions are accepted—and they seem logical—then the only thing Mr. Roosevelt could have told Mr. Farley is that he will not run. Whom he wants nominated, what he wants the convention to do and how he will make his announcement are things about which it is idle to speculate now. Apparently, the President has a dramatic surprise in view, which he will disclose only when he pleases.

BUT notwithstanding the evidence and despite inability to see how he can escape, the hunch is that he will escape. Nothing else fits in with the reports that he is a tired man; with the fact that the Willkie nomination has removed the justification for a third-term effort; with the insistence upon his deep belief in the American system and reluctance to do anything that could be construed as a step toward dictatorship. Perhaps this reasoning is all faulty, but it has never seemed to this writer that Mr. Roosevelt would take so terrific a gamble as that involved in a third-term effort. It seems less so now than before.

Solving Parent Problems

Q. When I go visiting with my little boy of three, he wants to examine everything in the house. Sometimes he breaks or injures things and my hostess acts as if she is angry about it. Don't you think she should be more sympathetic of a little child?

A. I think she should be very sympathetic toward the little child, but I don't blame her for wanting to drag you ten feet by the hair for not having trained your tot at home to mind. About the meanest mother who can visit in your home or mine is that mother who brings a brat along who breaks up things right before your eyes, as she sits idly by and even does not have the grace to offer to replace or pay for the destroyed property. And the greatest damage is to the character of the child.

Strict Attention To Own Business Policy For U. S.

So Declares Former Secretary Of War, Harry H. Woodring, In Address

(International News Service)

TOPEKA, Kansas, July 10.—Former Secretary of War Harry H. Woodring, always noted for his outspokenness, today was on record with one of his most forthright declarations for strict American neutrality and a foreign policy which encourages "a friendly attitude towards all nations."

"I hold it is not necessary for America to provoke antagonisms with any people because their nations choose one form of government over another," Woodring declared last night in a "welcome home" address before the Topeka Chamber of Commerce.

"There need be no 'first line of defense' beyond our own possessions," he added, "if we refrain from provoking belligerency with any of the warring nations.

"What is our quarrel with any power in the Orient, the Far or Near East, Europe or Asia?

"We have all we can do to mind our own business and prepare like hell to insulate this hemisphere from war.

"A neutral America, with a friendly attitude towards all nations, backed up by a powerfully prepared army and navy, is an America that has anticipated the path of wisdom and the path of peace. It is the only path that America may wisely follow, if honestly in search of peace, if honestly determined to keep out of war."

Woodring's remarks, coming only a few weeks after he resigned from President Roosevelt's cabinet, were considered particularly significant in the light of reports his resignation was demanded because he opposed the policy of aid to the Allies.

Woodring did not offer any direct explanation for his cabinet resignation, but, referring to it, he asserted: "If reaction from my leaving the war department as a non-interventionist has caused modification of some policies and has sobered some of those provocative and meddling advisers of the administration who would strip our own defenses, then I regret that I had no more to sacrifice on the altar of public service."

Dr. Herbert Hoehne Before Grand Jury

Faces Charge Of Failure To Register In U. S. As Alien Agent

(International News Service)

LOS ANGELES, July 10.—In a case that may have sensational international repercussions, Dr. Herbert Hoehne, 29-year-old alleged Nazi agent, was scheduled to face a federal grand jury today on a charge of failure to register with the state department as an alien agent.

U. S. District Attorney William Fleet Palmer announced he would present only enough evidence to assure Hoehne's indictment for violation of the act requiring registration of alien agents.

Palmer indicated he would not introduce to the grand jury today the alleged connection between Hoehne's activities and those of Captain Fritz Wiedemann, German consul general at San Francisco, and Herman Loeper, chancellor at the consulate.

Young Hoehne was arrested in Los Angeles three weeks ago as he prepared to board a plane for Mexico. According to federal authorities, he was carrying three package of sealed documents, said to be in secret German code, which were given to him by Captain Wiedemann for delivery to German consulates in South America.

Declaring that the Nazi consul general and his aide had committed an "over act" by commissioning Hoehne to carry the documents without first declaring his presence, U. S. Commissioner David B. Head said Monday he would issue warrants for the arrest of Wiedemann and Leoper if the federal attorney filed a complaint.

All information on the case has been sent to state and justice departments in Washington. It was learned that Palmer had received no instructions to proceed against the San Francisco consulate.

TWO HUNDRED PLANES ENGAGE IN SKY BATTLE

had been hiding in the clouds far above the battle dived down with their machine guns blazing.

Other British fighters took off and circled behind the Germans, and eventually drove them off.

No bomb hits were scored during the entire engagement.

LONDON, July 10.—A terrific sky battle—biggest and most violent of the war—was fought over southeastern England today as 30 German bombers, accompanied by swarms of Messerschmitt fighters, swooped in from the channel and were met by scores of British fighters.

At least 200 planes were believed engaged in the mass dog-fight, and a British air ministry announcement said at least five German planes were shot down.

Hardly had the terrific reverberations of the first gigantic onslaught died away than more Nazi raiders tried to cross the southeast coast once more. They were intercepted and driven off by British fighters, and one was believed shot down in the sea.

Forced To Flee

In the second attack, the raiding planes were forced to turn tail and, flee full speed in a southerly direction.

Although no exact figures were immediately available on the number of planes engaged in the first battle, spectators reported the skies were literally darkened with planes.

From reports that 30 German bombers were hurled into the attack, it was conservatively estimated that more than twice—or even three times—as many Nazi fighters ripped along beside the huge bombers to protect them.

At least 100 British fighters would have had to take the air to make any showing at all against such overwhelming numbers—and reports that five Nazi planes were shot down indicated they did.

Eye-witnesses saw the Spitfires break formation as each plane selected an opponent.

Then, they related, the air seemed to be full of zooming, fighting planes. At least one German craft was seen diving, apparently out of control.

Some of the heaviest machine gun and anti-aircraft fire yet witnessed in England was unleashed before the remainder of the Germans fled.

Eight Nazi Planes

Eight German craft were said to have taken part in the battle.

The dog fight was the latest episode in continued German raids against Great Britain. In one daylight raid this morning, five bombs were dropped on a southwestern English town. Many houses were damaged in the residential district and one man was killed.

Bombs also were dropped on a Welsh town during the morning. Anti-aircraft batteries there went into action.

In a battle last night three German planes were reported brought down off the southeast coast. No bombs were dropped in that raid.

According to an official announcement, nine German planes were shot down yesterday. In addition, a German Dornier 17 was brought down morning.

by Spitfires off the east coast this morning.

Selected Wrong District For Lawn Mower Trick

Melvin Steindorf knows now—or should—that much can be said for that simple yet tried-and-true maxim of the salesman: "Know your prospect".

Had he known his Cumberland avenue prospects while peddling a lawn mower late last week, he might have missed a 30-day trip to the county jail.

Steindorf, who gave New Wilmington as his address, first stopped at the home of Mrs. Alice Patterson, 114 Crawford avenue, and asked to repair Mrs. Patterson's lawn mower, standing on the lawn. But Mrs Patterson didn't want it repaired, and Steindorf left—with her mower, it is charged.

Up at 708 Cumberland avenue he stopped next—and 708, for your information, happens to be "home" to Police Chief Willis G. McMullen.

The chief's 15-year-old daughter, Sara Ann, answered the door and told Steindorf they weren't in need of a mower, so he went next door to Thomas Kelly's home at No. 710.

Steindorf convinced Kelly, who was about to purchase a new lawn cutter, that it was a good machine—and he bought it for a small sum, police say.

Then Chief McMullen's daughter became a detective when she learned from neighbors that Mrs. Patterson's mower had been taken. She knew a man had been around and had sold one to her neighbor. She learned also that it was same mower.

Young Sara Ann tipped her father off to the theft and soon police arrested Steindorf.

Booked on a larceny charge, Steindorf drew the 30 days when Mayor Charles B. Mayne heard the case in police court.

Army Detachment To Make Overnight Stop In New Castle

Medical Detachment Of About 300 Men To Bivouack Here On August 1

New Castle will be the overnight stopping point for a detachment of the United State army on the night of August 1 it was announced today by Major W. Fulton Jackson. The Medical Detachment of Carlisle Barracks will bivouack here that night with the probabilities that they will use the New Castle Fair grounds.

The detachment is composed of seven commissioned officers, 238 enlisted men and 63 pieces of transportation. This includes trucks, reconnaissance cars and supply units.

The unit has been ordered into Wisconsin for the army maneuvers in August and will make the trip overland. In the letter of notification the commanding officers invited the citizens of New Castle and Lawrence county to visit the detachment when they have their tents set up.

Two possible spots will be offered for the bivouack, the Fair Grounds and the grounds of the Troop K. Armory. If the weather is dry the unit will probably go to the fair grounds. In case of wet weather the armory grounds will be used.

Jackson assures us there will be no wholesale arresting of fifth columnists. That's what we were afraid of.

Port Of Dakur Under Attack

(International News Service)

GENEVA, July 10.—British planes attacked the Port of Dakar, French West Africa, after French naval forces there refused to reply to a British ultimatum, the French admiralty announced in a communique today.

The announcement, broadcast by the French radio, said British naval and air forces appeared off Dakar July 8 and delivered an ultimatum to the French admiral "which the latter considered unworthy of an answer."

British planes from an aircraft carrier then attacked the harbor and French anti-aircraft batteries went into action, the communique said.

(Yesterday in the House of Commons, British First Lord of the Admiralty A. V. Alexander disclosed that the 35,000-ton French battleship Richelieu had been attacked and put out of action at Dakar.)

Dr. Dafoe's Column On The Quintuplets And The Care Of Your Children

(Copyright, 1940, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

ADVICE

I have a letter from a woman who says her only son is marrying soon, and that his prospective wife knows absolutely nothing about life and its problems. She asks me to devote a column to all the problems a young couple faces today, as if addressed specifically to her son and his bride.

Well, I'm afraid that's too big an order for me. And I think that mother will be wise to be sparing in giving advice also.

The most acute problems that the young woman and her husband will be called upon to face are likely to be things I know nothing about. This is a new world, vastly different to my familiar, rather old-fashioned one, and probably to the mother's also.

Of course, there are certain age-old problems in relationships with which all of us elders are familiar—the give and take of family life you might call them, but as millions who have tried to solve them well know, there is no simple solution for them. Each married pair even if it is disposed to follow the advice of others, still has to learn to tread its way through the matrimonial maze on a basis of trial and error.

So, when it comes to giving a surefire formula for happiness to newly married couples, I'm afraid I'll have to pass. One thing I will venture, however: a proper diet has considerable to do with happiness.

We have all heard the old saying that the way to a man's heart is through his stomach and we have all laughed at it, perhaps, but there's a lot more truth than poetry in it.

In the last two decades science has done notable work in showing us how much particular foods do effect our temperaments as well as our health.

We truly dig our graves with our teeth. We also, to a large extent, influence our characters with them. Proper eating is the mainspring of all health. Seeing that her husband is properly fed is certainly a prime duty of a wife.

Fortunately for newlyweds for whom this is writeen by request of a mother, the most health-giving foods are usually the most inexpensive. Milk comes first on my list of important foods. The bride and her husband should use a quart or even two quarts a day. Next in importance are fruits and fruit juices, then leafy vegetables—lettuce, spinach, raw carrots, cabbage. Plenty of eggs must be in the diet list. All these come before meat and bread.

For the past week the county treasurer's office has been a mad scene. Delinquent taxes have been coming in along with current taxes and everybody in the office has been on the "qui vive" as the dear French would say.

Today is the dead line for tax payers to pay their delinquent taxes if they wish to avoid having their properties published as being up for sale on August 5 when the county treasurer sells properties which are delinquent for 1933 and 1934.

In the county jail at the present time there is an old colored man who has been taken in more for protective custody than anything else. The old gentleman—he must be 75—seems bewildered in his mind, thinks his name is Robert Lawton. An endeavor is being made to find out just who he is and have him sent back to where he belongs.

Once again the employes of the register and recorder's office would like to make it plain that they do not register voters, do not accept taxes, and have nothing to do with the county controller's office.

Strangers pass by the direction sign on the front of the building and come into Potter's office for instructions where to go.

Two days this month have been set aside for Public Utility Commission hearings in the court house, July 22 and 26. Hearings open at 10 a. m.

Final Payment Is Being Made

Depositors Of First National Bank Of New Wilmington Get 97.33 of Total

(Special To The News)

NEW WILMINGTON, July 10.—Payment of the fourth and final dividend of the First National Bank of New Wilmington was begun Tuesday morning and will continue until July 25, Russell H. Wilson, receiver at the bank, reports.

Claimants who have not lifted their final dividend by July 25 will have to secure the same from the office of the Comptroller of Currency at Washington, D. C.

The First National Bank went into receivership on December 19, 1933 and this final payment represents 97.33% of the total. Preceding this payment have been three other dividends for 50%, 30% and 8% of the total. The present dividend is for 9.33%.

How can such things be? Well, hasn't it occurred to you that Christian civilization needed to be reminded that it had forgotten God?

Tin Can Hobby Riders In City

Books Tell How Many Interesting Items May Be Made From Old Cans

Professor E. B. Rollins of Tufts College, who "rides" a tin can hobby, has no advantage over the dozen or more New Castle people who have used the tin-can craft books to be had at the local public library.

Candlesticks, wastebaskets, fruit and bonbon dishes, ash trays, cookie cutters, measuring cups, dresser trays, picture frames and many other interesting and useful articles can be made in the home workshop.

Directions may be found in the books: "Tin-Can Craft" by E. T. Hamilton or "55 New Tin Can Projects" by J. J. Lukowitz.

Allied to these books, but with other media besides tin can, are two other books which suggest many projects: "Prizes and Presents Every Girl Can Make", also by E. T. Hamilton; and "Art Adventures With Discarded Materials" by E. K. Perry.

The library suggests that you ask for them on your next visit to that institution and look them over for an answer to what to do with your old tin cans, boxes, old cotton and linens and other materials which have more possibilities than you'd think.

Major Jackson Called For Duty

Major W. Fulton Jackson, dental reserve officer of the United States Army, has been ordered to active duty for the period of August 4 to 24. Major Jackson is to report to the Corps Reception Center at Heuvelton, N. Y., where he will serve with the headquarters of the 22nd cavalry division.

The army maneuvers in upper New York State will be the most comprehensive held by the army in many years. Heuvelton, N. Y., is near Ogdensburg, N. Y., on the St. Lawrence River.

MUNICIPAL FOREST POPULAR IN STATE

HARRISBURG, July 10—There are thirty-three organized community or municipal forests in Pennsylvania with an area comprising nearly 25,000 acres.

Thirty-five municipalities have secured trees for reforestation purposes and have planted from ten to five hundred thousand trees each. Sixty-six other municipalities have planted one to nine thousand trees each. Thus, 134 communities have made at least a small beginning in establishing and maintaining areas for recreation, watershed protection and general forestry purposes.

Chicago Makes Ready For Democratic Convention

Farley Arrives For Big Session

Third Term And How To Beat Willkie Are Chief Mysteries

CONVENTION TO OPEN MONDAY

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
International News Service Staff Correspondent

CHICAGO, July 10.—Flags, bunting and "welcome conventioneers" signs today greeted delegates as they began moving into Chicago in steadily increasing numbers for the Democratic national convention which opens next Monday.

Finishing touches were being put on the Chicago stadium, scene of the convention, by 100 workmen. James A. Farley, Democratic national chairman, visited the arena, found the work progressing satisfactorily and said everything would be ready by Monday for the housing of 2,400 delegates and alternates and approximately 23,000 visitors to the party's 1940 convention. The stadium is located about a mile west of the loop district.

Third Term Mystery

Delegates crowding the hotel lobbies today divided their political chatter into two topics:

1.—The mystery surrounding the question: Will President Roosevelt run for a third term?

2.—How to beat Willkie?

Farley continued to keep Mr. Roosevelt's political plans confidential and nobody but the Democratic chairman and the president himself knew the answer to question No. 1.

Regarding Wendell L. Willkie, the Republican presidential nominee, it seemed to be the consensus of arriving Democratic delegates that he will prove to be a formidable candidate. But many of them insisted he is vulnerable.

Issue Is Seen

A strategist high in Democratic party councils contended that no matter whom the Democratic party nominates for president he can be elected if—by October 15 next—the national administration will have demonstrated to the American people that it has fully prepared the country for a defensive war.

"If, on that date, we are turning out airplanes by the thousands, if scores of new air fields have been constructed all over the country, if the Army and Navy has been built up and compulsory military service is in operation, the Democratic nominee is certain to win," he said.

Huge Ice Cream Output In State Is Reported

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, July 10.—Pennsylvania today stands second nationally in ice cream production with an annual production of $40,000,000, according to a recent survey of the State Planning board.

The survey reveals there are 350 ice cream makers in the commonwealth with an annual average of 5000 employes. During the summer months, employment rolls jump 50 per cent over less active periods.

Pennsylvania can trace its commercial ice cream industry back to 1800, when an Italian confectioner, in Germantown, began manufacturing the delicacy.

The survey also disclosed that the Pennsylvania State college was the pioneer in offering instruction in the art of ice cream manufacture, having originated the course in 1892.

Fifty-nine of the state's 68 counties have plans producing at least $1,000 worth of ice cream annually. Philadelphia is the biggest production center, employing approximately 2000 workers. Pittsburgh ranks second with nearly 500. Other large production areas are in Lancaster county, Luzerne county, Erie county and Schuylkill county.

Plans of the trio provide for them to enter Mexico through Laredo, Texas and then down the Pan-American highway to Mexico City. They will head west from this city to Acapulco, on the Pacific Ocean, and thence north to Chicago.

Robert Erzinger is known throughout the eastern part of the United States for his cycling trips and was selected as the June "Boy of the Month" by Youth, a nationally circulated magazine for high school and college students. Roger Lawshe is the son of Ben B. Lawshe, official in the national Chamber of Commerce, Washington, D. C.

RED MITES DESTROYED BY CAREFUL SPRAYING

HARRISBURG, July 10.—The Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture today advised nurserymen and home owners to examine their evergreens carefully at frequent intervals during July and August to detect the presence of red mites (red spider). There are several species of this pest which attack practically all the evergreens.

The department said:

"To control these pests, spray the infested tree as soon as the pests are noticed with a solution made from any of the well-known summer spray oils. Use enough oil to make from 1½ to 2% of oil, and add one pint of nicotine sulphate containing 40% of nicotine to each 100 gallons of spray. In applying, make sure to cover all parts of the tree since only such mites as are hit will be killed."

Let France fix the guilt. The spearheads of every German advance were the unbeatable Czech tanks which Chamberlain gave away.

'Flash' Rainstorm Hits Pittsburgh

Freak Storm Slashes At Allegheny County; Damage Is Quite Heavy

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, July 10—Utility repairmen and street and road workers tackled another "flash" storm cleanup job throughout most of Allegheny county today.

Streets and homes, particularly in the northern section of the county, were flooded in many areas, wires were broken down and small fires started by the terrific thunderstorm which swept the Pittsburgh area late yesterday. Millvale streets were flooded, scores of families and business people fleeing from homes and stores when Girty's run overflowed its banks. Traffic came to a virtual standstill during the downpour.

LOUIS BERNABE HURT IN CRASH

He was brought to the Jameson Memorial hospital by James Henderson, of R. F. D. No. 1. His condition was reported as good this morning.

SUFFERS BURNS AT BURTON PLANT

Alfred Crawford aged 54, of R. F. D. No. 7, Mahoningtown, was brought to the Jameson Memorial hospital at 12:10 o'clock this morning suffering from burns on the right arm and right side of the face, sustained while at work at the Burton Works of the American Cyanimid and Chemical Co.

Mr. Crawford was taking the temperature of the salt cake, when he slipped and splashed the hot acid over the upper part of his body.

The sawfly larva sprays its enemies with a shower of acid.

Centennial Of Zelienople Near

Historic Episodes In Town's Early Development Will Be Enacted

TOWN FOUNDED BY GERMAN BARON

Zelienople is completing plans for its 100th anniversary celebration, July 21 to 27.

Although this observance marks the birthday of the community as a borough, it was actually founded in 1793 by German-born Baron Basse. He named the Butler County settlement after his daughter, 'Zelie' and the Greek word "Polis," meaning "city."

A cast of 600 persons will enact historic episodes which took place in the early days of the Old West. There will be a dramatization of an incident which occurred during the War of 1812 when American soldiers, following Commodore Perry's route from Philadelphia to Pittsburgh, through Zelienople to Erie, camped near the town. Because a local inn-keeper was supposed to have made unfavorable remarks concerning the soldiers, they punished him by the tar and feather method.

A church service will open the week's celebration which begins on Sunday, July 21.

MANY BARBERRY BUSHES DESTROYED

HARRISBURG, July 10. — The Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture reports that during the month of May 56,488 common barberry bushes were destroyed on 156 properties in northwestern and northeastern counties of Pennsylvania, requiring 33,403 pounds of salt for the treatment.

Common barberry serves as the alternate host plant for the spread of Black Stem Rust on oats, wheat and other cereals. By the removal of the barberry from the rural areas, farmers are able to reduce the loss in yield of cereal crops due to this disease.

The Human Side Of The News

(By EDWIN C. HILL)

Copyright 1940 King Features Syndicate, Inc.

The war has silenced the bells of once Merrie England. Until the coming of a happier day, their silvery clamor may be heard only as a warning against parachutists or other air-invaders.

The English people love their ancient bells. Big Ben, with its voice of thunder, is almost a living creature to them. English bells have inspired nursery rhymes—"Oranges and lemons, sing the bells of St. Clemens.' ' Bell-ringing is a great art in which there are as many as five thousand changes in the ringing and chiming. Until now those bells were symbols of the security and continuance of Old England, which always has been known as the "ringing island".

Big Ben, in the clock tower of the House of Commons, is the most famous of all bells, with its deep, sonorous tone, but the oldest is Great Tom, in the belfry of St. Paul's Cathedral. It is four hundred years older than Big Ben. Your genuine, unadulterated Cockney must have been born within the sound of the Bow Bells of St. Mary's. But population now crowds in around St. Mary's the roar of the city competes and, because of the complaint of office workers and anti-noise crusaders, the bells ring less frequently than they used to, and there is probably many a Cockney who never heard Bow Bells.

Dearly cherished are the bells of St. Martin's-in-the-Field, of Westminster Abbey, of St. Margaret's, of Stokes Poges and the other carillons and peals. But they are silent now, those bells of old England, for their sweet chiming, these days, could only sadden the summer air.

War, indeed, casts its blight upon all things. The Oberammergau Passion Play, for the second time in its history, falls a victim of war. The play for this year has been definitely postponed. Technical difficulties and the fact that many of the actors are at the front are the reasons. Anton Lang, who plays Christus, has not, however, been drafted. Once every ten years the men, women and children of that little town in the Bavarian Alps re-enact the life of Christ from Gethsemane to Golgotha.

Its origin goes back three centuries to the black plague which swept Europe after the Thirty Years War. At that time the village built a ring of flames around it and posted guards to drive away any who might approach. But a homesick youngster, who had been straying in the hills, crept through the defenses and brought the infection with him. Forty persons died, and the villages pledged to God the devout enactment of the Passion every ten years, until the end of time, if they should be spared. Thereafter there were no more deaths from the plague, and the play was produced every ten years, profoundly real and moving. I think the only exception was in the Prussian War in 1870.

Although the world had discovered Oberammergau, and a great theatre, holding five thousand people, was built in a natural, open-air setting, the village has retained its rare medieval charm. Once every ten years, Peter, Caiphas, Pilate, Mary and the Christ walk through the spotless streets in religious costume or, when not acting, sit at their benches in native dress at work in their wood-carving and pottery.

Twelve hundred of the 2,000 villagers are in the cast. But their devout voices would be lost this year of 1940—lost in the roar of cannon and exploding bombs, the thunders of the Apocalypse as the Four Horsemen ride again.

There was a day when the storms of international politics raged in Europe, that a Rothschild was sure to be found somewhere in the tempest. But the hurricane of wrath now sweeping the continent has been too much for the wealth, influence and endurance of even that remarkable family. At least five of them are in the United States, two in England, and two or three more, when last heard from, were trying to escape from France, through Spain, into Portugal, with the object of reaching South America or this country.

The tremendous change which has come ove rthe face of Europe, politically, economically and financially, can be measured by the fact that the members of this once fabulously rich and tremendously powerful clan are all fugitives, fleeing, one supposes, with what salvageable wealth they could take with them.

Until this evil day, the great family of Rothschild, through long depressions and violent upheavals, had always been unique, enduring and inseparable. Until the rise of the dictators, the total family fortune had been unmatched and incalculable, probably the greatest of all private riches.

It was Mayer Anselm who founded the golden dynasty some two hundred years ago. As a money-lender he won the confidence and gratitude of the Landgrave of Hesse. He chose a family name from the sign which had swung from his shop, a red shield—Rothschild. He left five sons who divided Europe among them. Nathan, the eldest and ablest financier of them all, chose England tripled his fortune when, by an organized signal system, he got the first news of Napoleon's defeat at Waterloo. He had, by enormous loans to the British government, bet millions of pounds that England would triumph.

There was for a century and a quarter a Rothschild at the right hand of every important throne in Europe. Now they are in hiding, are fleeing, but possessed, so report has it, of at least their family motto: "Concord, Integrity, Industry and Fidelity."

A defense official says America can beat the world building weapons. But shouldn't we do some of it with tools instead of our mouths?

Phooey on flies!

Flies are filthy creatures.

They seem to serve no good purpose.

Flies carry disease germs and deposit them on people's food.

They may carry typhoid germs from sewage to the table.

They can carry tubercle bacilli from cuspidor to humidor.

Some people do not pay much attention to flies.

But they should, for flies are filth distributors.

Garbage or food should not be left exposed.

Screens or fly traps should be around the house.

Baby's face and food should be protected against flies.

Flies shoul be annimilated — the dirty pests!

Nationals Win All-Star Game

Maxie West Hits Long Homer In First Inning To Be Hero Of All-Star Battle

By ROBERT HEREFORD
International News Service Sports Writer

ST. LOUIS, July 10.—A youthful player who was substituted into the lineup just before the game began, who was at bat only once and who played less than an inning and a half, emerged today as the hero of the National League's 4 to 0 victory over the American League in the eighth annual All-Star major league baseball game.

The young hero of the game was Max West, brilliant outfielder of the Boston Bees, who was injected into the lineup just before game time by National Manager Bill McKechnie, in place of Mel Ott, veteran Giant outfielder.

Hits Long Homer

All the young man did was to step to the plate in the first inning and rifle the ball 354 feet into the right center pavillion seats for a home run, scoring Arky Vaughan of the Pirates and Billy Herman of the Cubs ahead of him. Both Vaughan and Herman previously had singled off Charley "Red" Ruffing of the Yankees.

For the crowd of more than 32,000 jammed into Sportsman's Park, home of the St. Louis Cardinals, the rest of the game was all in the nature of an anti-climax. West's titanic swat provided the margin of victory, with brilliant pitching by Derringer, Walters, Wyatt, French and Hubbell, who allowed but three hits between them, the Nationals were able to register the first shut-out in All-Star game history.

West Injured

Harry Danning singled in the eighth frame to score Ott with the National Leaguers' fourth run.

West's appearance in the game, though potent, was brief. In the second inning, while chasing Luke Appling's double, he crashed into the right field wall and suffered a bruised hip. He was replaced by Bill Nicholson of the Cubs.

ATHLETICS WIN GAME

The North Hill Athletics won a Class B softball league game last night at Boyles Field from the Fleetwings 11 to 7. The winning pitcher was Hedland, the loser was Pollock. Homers were hit by Dewberry and Byers.

The annual all-star football game will be held in Chicago this year on Aug. 29.

Art Leslie Joins Hole-In-One Ranks

Martin Street Man Registers Ace At Sylvan Heights Course

Arthur A. Leslie, of 411 Martin street, joined the ranks of the Cuckoo club, Tuesday at Sylvan Heights when he dropped one into the cup on the par 3, No. 16 hole, a distance of 165 yards.

Leslie's feat was witnessed by Earl J. Sowers, of R. F. D. No. 1, and J. E. Wilson, of 712 Wilmington avenue.

Leslie has been banging away at the mark all summer, and finally registered where a number of others have just failed, although Carl McIltrot registered the same feat on the same hole at Sylvan Heights earlier in the season.

Two league games outside of the Bessemer-Medusa battle, will be played tonight in the Lawrence County league at 6 o'clock. The Ellwood team goes to New Galilee to meet the Hot Tops. The Brent team will go to Wampum to play the White Sox.

FANNINS DEFEAT TROGGIOS

The Fannins defeated the Troggios last night in a Class B game at Rose avenue field 5 to 2. The winning hurler was Lane, the loser was Semansky. Joe Lamorella of the Fans thrilled the large crowd by homering in the sixth with the sacks choked with his mates. Tonight the Fannins play the Art Bakers of Pittsburgh at the Rose avenue field at 6 o'clock. This is one of the fastest junior teams in the Pittsburgh district.

Paul Calvert, rookie hurler at Wilkes-Barre, is a French-Canadian and is liable for call in the army. However, he wears glasses and this may mean he won't be called back to Canada until after the baseball season.

Americans' Big Guns At All-Star Game

The heavy hitters of the American League are lined up before you at the All-Star game between the National and American Leagues at Sportsmen's Park, St. Louis. Left to right, they are Charley Keller of the Yanks; Jimmy Foxx, Boston Red Sox; Joe DiMaggio, Yanks; Hank Greenberg, of the Detroit Tigers and Bob Johnson, of the Philadelphia Athletics.

Sports World Ramblings

Sports snapshots — "Rabbit" Maranville and Al Kruez, who are supervising a free baseball school here every Friday, have uncovered an unusually fine pitching prospect in Wayne Carpenter, a 16-year-old right-hander from Union Township. The tutors have labeled the Union High athlete as one of the prize discoveries of the season. . . .

Maranville and Kruez watched Paul "Gulliver" Minner toss a few last week and were greatly impressed. Minner learned his diamond ABC's from Kruez last year. The New Wilmington southpaw pegger is showing rapid progress. . . . Henry Marshall, who received a try out with Indianapolis early this season, is playing with the Erie Sailors. The Erie aggregation, which quit the Middle-Atlantic League at the end of the '39 campagn, is now an independent outfit. . . .

In bold face type, sports pages tell interesting stories about major league magnates unfoldin big rolls of cabbage for a promising rookie grazing on pastures in various corners of this grand country. Occasionally, these same big money men come up with a gem acquired for nothing whatsoever, sometimes the only cash involved being the railroad fare. . . .

Not too long ago, for instance, a stringy youth was playing independent ball in New York. The semi-pro manager was so impressed with his protege that he wrote the Giants and New York Yanks and told them about his find. He informed the prexies that they could have the yearling for $100. His letter was tossed aside. . . .

The pilot next penned a note to Larry MacPhail, then foreman of the Cincy Reds. He wasn't too impressed but decided to take a gamble. He shipped the morning glory to the Middle-Atlantic after coughing up the century note. Today, that player, Frankie McCormick, is a $100,000 player. MacPhail, to show his appreciation, sent the manager a $150 bonus. All told, McCormick cost the Reds $268, the $18 difference representing railroad fare for the player. . . .

Lloyd Waner climbed into a Pirate uniform without costing Pittsburgh a cent. When Paul was purchased from Los Angeles for $30,000 in 1926, Lloyd received a pink slip from the same club. Paul was unable to 'front' for his brother, despite the fact that he had confidence in Lloyd's ability. Paul was sensational. He was complimented by officials and replied: "You should see my kid brother." The Pirates did see Paul's brother. He has remained there since. . . .

Holdouts Few In Pro Grid League

(International News Service)

DAYTON, O., July 10.—National Football League officials hold high hopes of an unprecedented "no-holdout" season for the coming 1940 grind.

The gridiron pros in the ten clubs are signing 1940 contracts at record speed, President Carl L. Storck announced. He said:

"Not since the National Football League was formed in 1921 has there been such a rush of new and old players to return signed contracts as has taken place in recent weeks. All our ten clubs have larger numbers of signed players than at this time last season.

"At the present rate of signing our league will not have a single holdout by the time the clubs start training early in August. That happy situation would be unprecedented in the history of professional football and basketball."

The reasons for the rush said Storck, are the increasing popularity and prestige of pro football, attractive financial inducement and the desire of many college stars to play more football.

As a rule, the players wait until late July or August before they even begin discussing contracts. The league will begin this season with more than 300 players.

Jenkins Facing Biggest Test

Beltin Henry Armstrong And Texas Puncher Meet In New York Next Wednesday

By PAT ROBINSON
International News Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK, July 10—One week from tonight Lew (Spareribs) Jenkins definitely deserts the one-armed lunch belt for the champagne and caviar circuit.

That is the night when the Cadaverous Lew will meet Henry Armstrong over the 12-round route in the polo grounds, a meeting that promoter Mike Jacobs is willing to wager will draw the biggest gate of the year and the fourth-largest of all time among little men.

This is another way of saying that Mike expects a $200,000 gate. Benny Leonard and Lou Tandler drew the biggest gate for little men 17 years ago when they played to $452,648. The same pair also drew the second largest, $367,862 and Mike's carnival of champions card three year ago was third with $265,000.

Argue Over Weight

Mike fervently hopes Jenkins and Armstrong—fighting at a $16.50 top—will be fourth just ahead of Kid Chocolate and Al Singer who drew $196,515 just before the market crash back in 1929.

Should Jenkins and Armstrong lure $200,000 through the turnstiles they will have the honor of drawing the biggest non-title gate of all time for little men.

Although the fight is a natural, no publicity gag is being left unused for the build-up. For instance both camps today are still battling over the weight question.

Elders-Saints Play Tie Game

The Elders and St. Joseph's played a 2-2 tie exhibition game last night at Lockley Field. The game was halted at the end of the sixth by darkness. Each team used two pitchers—the Elders had Gibson and Witherow on the hill and the Saints used Father Peter Michael Schirra and Hartman.

Calderaro had the only extra-base hit in the game, a double.

Score by innings:	R.	H.	E.
Saints .....110 000—2	6	2
Elders .....010 010—2	5	1

Batteries: St. Joseph's—Father Schirra, Hartman and Hoskins. Elders—Witherow, Gibson and Burns.

FROM ME TO YOU

By MESEEALL

Some fourty citizens have taken advantage of the city's offer to have their sidewalks fixed at low cost. There is still room for more . . . so fill out the blanks that appear in this newspaper from time to time . . . keep up your property . . . it pays . . . and you can't have the work done any cheaper

Here is a lead for those who want a dog . . . call at once as the dogs are in great demand. Remember every dog that appears in this column is free.

Mrs. F. R. Florida, 813 E. Main street . . . a male terrier, white with brown markings. He is very friendly and playful. Owners want a good home for him.

Several intersections within the city limits are rather dangerous . . . maybe we should say more dangerous than others . . . and the cause for this lies in the fact that high hedges obstruct the motorists view. If property owners would get out and look over their situation we feel sure that many of these hedges could be fixed.

* * *

Some folks will take advantage of the ice cream social that will be held on the lawn of the St. Andrew's Episcopal Church tonight . . . with all the trimmings.

* * *

Since the heavy summer traffic has started the highway police are riding the roads in numbers . . . and we are glad to see them . . . it sort of gives a feeling of security . . . they are there not only to enforce the traffic laws of our state but to help motorists. Pennsylvania is a great state and people who travel our roads enjoy our hospitality . . . they can drive at a reasonable speed and yet enjoy the scenery . . . see America but see Pennsylvania first is in the minds of hundreds of United States citizens.

* * *

We have talked and talked about the worth of the classified ads . . . some folks have doubted our word and to prove to themselves . . . have used this page . . . ask these folks what they think . . . most of them will say they were really surprised by the results . . . If you doubt our word . . . try a classified ad sometime . . . really folks they do work and work hard.

Market Continues Aimless Trading Trend, Price Changes Are Very Few

By LESLIE GOULD

NEW YORK, July 10.—The stock market continued its aimless trend today, with the majority of issues ruling a shade lower. There were a number of plus signs, however, and price changes with few exceptions were meaningless.

Volume was maintained at recent record-low levels. First-hour turnover totaled 60,000 shares.

Trading was enlivened in the second hour by a flurry of activity in some of the utility preferred shares, notably those of Electric Power & Light. The $6 preferred spurted 3 points and the $7 preferred about half as much, both making frequent appearances on the tape.

War developments were featured by the clash of British and Italian fleets in the Mediterranean, with conflicting reports of the battle.

A few leaders in the market displayed a soft undertone. American Telephone was particularly weak, slipping almost 2 points before meeting support. Chrysler, American Air Lines and Philip Morris each lost a point.

In the steels, National and Crucible eased almost a point, while Bethlehem and U. S. Steel dropped early fractional gains.

Other declines included those in Pennsylvania R. R., Union Pacific, Westinghouse, U. S. Gypsum, Cerro De Pasco, Continental Can, United Aircraft, Douglas and Allied Chemical.

Plus signs were shown by N. Y. Central, Standard Oil of N. J., Anaconda, American Can, Du Pont and Lockheed.

Speaker William B. Bankhead will make the keynote speech Monday night, and Senator Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky, permanent chairman of the convention, will speak Tuesday night.

Federal Funds For Roads Less Than Tax Yield

Pennsylvania Gets Back Third Of Auto Taxes For Road Improvements

PAY SEVEN PER CENT OF NATION'S TOTAL

HARRISBURG, July 10.—Pennsylvania motorists paid federal excise taxes during the fiscal year 1939 far in excess of the amount of federal road funds spent in the Commonwealth I. Lamont Hughes, secretary of highways, said today. Secretary Hughes made his statement on the basis of data furnished him by the Keystone Automobile club.

Total federal tax payments by Pennsylvania motorists during the 1939 fiscal year amounted to $24,892,917, according to estimates. That was 7.27 per cent of the total payments by motorists in the United States.

Expenditures by the federal government during that period for federal aid highway improvements in Pennsylvania were $8,400,882. The excess of payments by motorists over expenditures in the state was $15,492,000. Federal taxes on motorists are collected on gasoline, lubricating oils, tires and tubes, trucks, automobiles and accessories. Federal taxes on most of these items have been boosted under the new revenue act adopted by Congress.

While federal taxes on Pennsylvania motorists have been increased the amount of money to be returned to this state for road purposes is being reduced under legislation now pending before Congress, Secretary Hughes pointed out. Congress is now considering federal-aid road appropriations for the years ending June 30, 1942 and 1943. The amount carried in the bill for these two years is approximately 20 per cent less than was appropriated for 1940 and 1941.

Secretary Hughes called attention to statistics prepared by the American Association of State Highway Officials to show that for the year 1933 to 1939 inclusive the federal government has collected more than $1,964,000,000 from the motorists of the country in special taxes. During that same period federal expenditures on state highway systems has amounted to only $1,682,000,000.

The excess of federal collections from Pennsylvania motorists over what is returned to this state would be sufficient to build approximately 150 miles of modern multiple lane highways a year, Secretary Hughes said.

Today is the third day for the official Girl Scout Day camp at Cascade Park, and the camping activities are now well under way. With eager enthusiasm which matched the brilliance of the day, over 100 girls gathered in Cascade Park on Monday to open the 1940 Day Camp.

Each morning the girls, standing in a large circle and presenting a striking picture in the sun, repeat the Allegiance to the Flag and the scout oath and laws, as the color guards in green bring forth the Stars and Stripes.

After the ceremony the camping program begins immediately with each group disappearing into a leafy bower to set up their outdoor home for two weeks of camp-living.

Most of the units have built fire places and have used them to prepare their meals. Other camp equipment including tables, chairs and natural caches has also been constructed.

The girls are swimming, boating, hiking, carving initial pins, making pottery, studying nature and doing many other things to make their camp life one of continuous activity.

Each afternoon a campfire is built by each unit and the girls enjoy a program of songs and story telling about the fire. Plans are being made for a general camp, campfire Friday afternoon, at which time a gala program, including a playlet, will be presented.
